

1 Chronicles 16:27

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Glory and honour are in his presence; strength and gladness are in his place.

Analysis

David's psalm declares: 'Glory and honour are in his presence; strength and gladness are in his place.' This verse pairs four attributes found in God's presence: glory (kavod), honor (hadar), strength (oz), and gladness (chedvah). These qualities aren't abstract but experientially known by those who dwell in God's presence. The parallelism - presence/place - indicates where God dwells, these blessings exist. This anticipates the New Testament reality that believers are God's temple, His dwelling place (1 Corinthians 3:16), and therefore experience these blessings. Christ's presence brings glory, honor, strength, and joy to His people.

Historical Context

Proclaimed when the ark entered Jerusalem (c. 1000 BCE), this verse established temple worship's theological foundation - God's presence brings blessing. The Levites would repeat this daily, reminding Israel that worship's goal is experiencing God's presence, which transforms worshipers.

Study Questions

1. Do you consciously seek God's presence to experience His glory, strength, and gladness, or do you settle for religious duty without divine encounter?
2. What would it mean to live daily in awareness that God's presence dwells in you through the Spirit?
