

1 Chronicles 17:16

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And David the king came and sat before the LORD, and said,
Who am I, O LORD God, and what is mine house, that thou hast brought me hitherto?

Analysis

David's response 'Who am I, O LORD God, and what is mine house, that thou hast brought me hitherto?' exemplifies proper reception of grace - humble wonder rather than entitled presumption. The rhetorical questions acknowledge human unworthiness before divine favor. David's progression from shepherd to king came entirely by God's sovereign grace, not personal merit. This reflects the Reformed doctrine of election and unmerited favor. David's amazement at covenant promises mirrors believers' wonder at salvation in Christ - 'who am I that You would choose me?' This humble posture prepares hearts to receive greater revelation of God's grace.

Historical Context

David's humble origins - youngest son of a Bethlehem shepherd - made his elevation particularly remarkable. Ancient Near Eastern kings typically boasted of their ancestry and achievements, making David's self-abasement counter-cultural and theologically profound.

Study Questions

1. When you consider God's grace in your life, do you respond with David's humble wonder or a sense of entitlement?
2. How does meditating on your spiritual poverty apart from Christ cultivate appropriate amazement at His grace?
