

1 Chronicles 28:6

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And he said unto me, Solomon thy son, he shall build my house and my courts: for I have chosen him to be my son, and I will be his father.

Analysis

God's covenant word to David about Solomon: 'And he said unto me, Solomon thy son, he shall build my house and my courts: for I have chosen him to be my son, and I will be his father.' This reaffirms the Davidic covenant (17:11-14) with explicit application to Solomon. The father-son relationship language signifies covenant intimacy and obligation. God's choosing Solomon (bachar - elect/select) demonstrates divine sovereignty in appointing leaders. The purpose - building house and courts - shows God's election serves His redemptive purposes. This points ultimately to Christ, God's chosen Son who builds the true temple. All believers, united to Christ, share in this sonship and building work.

Historical Context

Spoken at David's assembly appointing Solomon (c. 971 BCE), this public declaration established Solomon's legitimacy as chosen by God, not merely human succession. The covenant's continuity through generations showed God's faithfulness despite human frailty.
