

1 Chronicles 29:17

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

I know also, my God, that thou triest the heart, and hast pleasure in uprightness. As for me, in the uprightness of mine heart I have willingly offered all these things: and now have I seen with joy thy people, which are present here, to offer willingly unto thee.

Analysis

David's confession 'I know also, my God, that thou triest the heart, and hast pleasure in uprightness' reveals God's testing and approval. The verb 'triest' (bahan - test/prove) suggests refining fire, purifying motive. God delights (ratzah) in 'uprightness' (yosher - straightness/integrity) - pure motives, not mere external conformity. David's claim 'in the uprightness of mine heart I have willingly offered all these things' isn't self-righteousness but testimony to grace-wrought sincerity. The observation 'I have seen with joy thy people, which are present here, to offer willingly unto thee' shows community impact of personal integrity. This anticipates Christ, the perfectly upright one, in whom God is well-pleased.

Historical Context

David's testimony came near the end of his life (c. 971 BCE), reflecting mature spiritual insight gained through failures and restoration. His genuine joy at the people's response demonstrated that leadership's primary goal is catalyzing others' devotion to God.
