

1 Corinthians 10:32

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Give none offence, neither to the Jews, nor to the Gentiles, nor to the church of God:

Analysis

Give none offence, neither to the Jews, nor to the Gentiles, nor to the church of God—Paul specifies how to glorify God (v. 31): give none offence (aproskopoi ginesthe, ἀπρόσκοποι γίνεσθε, "be without offense/stumbling block"). The goal is removing obstacles that hinder gospel reception or harm spiritual growth. Paul identifies three groups requiring consideration: Jews, Gentiles (literally "Greeks"), and the church of God.

To Jews, offense might involve eating unclean food or violating Sabbath, creating barriers to gospel hearing. To Gentiles, offense might involve Christian behavior that seems antisocial, weird, or morally compromised, discrediting the message. To the church, offense involves wounding weak consciences (8:9-13) or creating division. Love seeks to remove unnecessary stumbling blocks in all three contexts, becoming "all things to all people" (9:19-23) for gospel's sake.

This doesn't mean compromising truth or fearing all criticism—Jesus offended religious leaders by speaking truth (Matthew 15:12-14). Rather, it means avoiding unnecessary offense through cultural insensitivity, flaunting freedom, or indifference to others' consciences. Where the gospel itself offends (the cross is a stumbling block, 1:23), we proclaim it boldly. But where our behavior unnecessarily offends, we adjust for love's sake and gospel effectiveness.

Historical Context

Corinth's strategic location made it ethnically diverse—Jews, Greeks, Romans, various Mediterranean peoples. The church included members from all backgrounds (1:26-29, 12:13). Paul's mission strategy required cultural sensitivity without gospel compromise—don't offend Jews unnecessarily (Acts 16:3, circumcising Timothy), don't scandalize Gentiles unnecessarily, don't wound believers unnecessarily. This navigation required wisdom, love, and gospel-centeredness.

Study Questions

1. How can you distinguish between offensive gospel truth (which must be proclaimed) and offensive Christian behavior (which should be avoided)?
2. What culturally conditioned behaviors might you need to adjust to avoid unnecessarily offending different groups?
3. In what ways might insensitivity to others' backgrounds or scruples hinder gospel effectiveness in your context?
