

1 Corinthians 15:12

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Now if Christ be preached that he rose from the dead, how say some among you that there is no resurrection of the dead?

Analysis

Now if Christ be preached that he rose from the dead (Εἰ δὲ Χριστὸς κηρύσσεται ὅτι ἐκ νεκρῶν ἐγήγερται)—Paul begins his logical argument. The perfect tense egēgertai (ἐγήγερται, "has been raised") indicates completed action with ongoing results. Christ's resurrection is the foundation of apostolic preaching (kēryssō, κηρύσσω, "to herald").

How say some among you that there is no resurrection of the dead? (πῶς λέγουσιν ἐν ὑμῖν τινες ὅτι ἀνάστασις νεκρῶν οὐκ ἔστιν;)—The word anastasis (ἀνάστασις) means "standing up again," physical bodily resurrection. Greek philosophical dualism, especially Platonism and Epicureanism, denied bodily resurrection as undesirable (Acts 17:32). Some Corinthians, influenced by this worldview, accepted Christ's unique resurrection but denied general resurrection—a logically incoherent position Paul demolishes.

Historical Context

Greek philosophy viewed the body as a prison (Plato's Phaedo: 'soma sēma'—'the body is a tomb'). Immortality of the soul, yes; resurrection of the body, absurd. Stoics and Epicureans at Athens mocked Paul when he mentioned resurrection (Acts 17:32). Corinthian believers, immersed in this culture, struggled to embrace bodily resurrection.
