

1 Corinthians 16:4

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And if it be meet that I go also, they shall go with me.

Analysis

And if it be meet that I go also—Axios (ἄξιος, "meet") means "worthy" or "fitting." Paul remained uncertain whether his personal presence in Jerusalem would be appropriate or beneficial. His humility contrasts with modern ministry celebrity culture; Paul subordinated personal involvement to what best served the mission. He ultimately did travel to Jerusalem with the delegation (Acts 20:4, 21:15-17), where he was arrested, fulfilling his premonition that "bonds and afflictions" awaited him (Acts 20:23).

They shall go with me—The plural pronoun emphasizes corporate witness. Multiple representatives from various Gentile churches traveled together (Acts 20:4 lists Sopater, Aristarchus, Secundus, Gaius, Timothy, Tychicus, and Trophimus), embodying the unity of the multiethnic church and ensuring transparency.

Historical Context

Paul's journey to Jerusalem with the collection (AD 57) resulted in his arrest and eventual martyrdom in Rome. The dramatic narrative in Acts 21-28 shows how God used even Paul's imprisonment to advance the gospel to Rome and Caesar's household. The collection, representing years of effort and sacrifice, became instrumental in God's providence.
