

1 Corinthians 3:13

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Every man's work shall be made manifest: for the day shall declare it, because it shall be revealed by fire; and the fire shall try every man's work of what sort it is.

Analysis

Every man's work shall be made manifest: for the day shall declare it (ἡ ἡμέρα δηλώσει, hē hēmera dēlōsei)—'the Day' (capitalized, with definite article) refers to the day of Christ's return and judgment (1 Corinthians 1:8, 5:5; 1 Thessalonians 5:4). Dēlōsei (shall reveal/make clear) promises exposure of all hidden things. Because it shall be revealed by fire; and the fire shall try every man's work of what sort it is (ποῖόν ἐστιν, poion estin—'of what quality').

The fire is not purgatorial but probative—it tests and reveals quality, not purges sin. This is not about salvation (believers are secure, verse 15) but reward for faithful service. The phrase poion estin ('what sort it is') emphasizes qualitative evaluation, not quantitative measurement. God judges motives, methods, and fruit, not just activity level. The Refiner's fire (Malachi 3:2-3) purifies gold but consumes dross. This eschatological judgment should produce present carefulness: knowing our work will be tested should motivate excellence, humility, and dependence on God's strength rather than human ingenuity.

Historical Context

Fire was both feared and revered in antiquity—destructive to human habitations but purifying for precious metals. Refining gold and silver required intense heat to separate pure metal from dross. The eschatological 'day of the Lord' in OT prophecy often involved fire imagery (Malachi 4:1, Isaiah 66:15), representing God's holy presence consuming all impurity.

Study Questions

1. How does the certainty that 'every man's work shall be made manifest' affect your present priorities in ministry, career, and relationships?
2. What work are you doing that you hope will survive 'the Day'—and what might prove to be wood, hay, or stubble?
3. How can you build now with eternity in view, ensuring quality ('what sort it is') rather than just quantity?
