

1 Corinthians 5:4

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

In the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, when ye are gathered together, and my spirit, with the power of our Lord Jesus Christ,

Analysis

In the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, when ye are gathered together—church discipline is a corporate act requiring formal assembly, not individual vigilantism. In the name (ἐν τῷ ὀνόματι) indicates authority derived from Christ, acting as His representatives. Discipline is exercised under Christ's lordship and by His authority, not human wisdom or personal vendetta.

And my spirit, with the power of our Lord Jesus Christ—Paul's apostolic presence and Christ's power attend the assembly. The phrase dynamis tou Kyriou ("power of the Lord") emphasizes this isn't human strength but divine enablement. Church discipline, properly conducted, is a spiritual act where Christ Himself acts through His body to protect purity and pursue restoration. The assembly's unity—gathered together with Paul's spirit and Christ's power—demonstrates the gravity and legitimacy of the action.

Historical Context

Early church discipline was a public, corporate act of the assembled congregation, not decisions made by clergy alone. The phrase 'gathered together' (synagō) reflects synagogue practice adapted to Christian assembly. This public nature protected against abuse while emphasizing the church's collective responsibility for holiness.
