

1 Peter 2:14

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Or unto governors, as unto them that are sent by him for the punishment of evildoers, and for the praise of them that do well.

Analysis

Peter explains governors' divinely ordained role. They are sent "for the punishment of evildoers, and for the praise of them that do well" (eis ekdikēsin kakopoiōn epainon de agathopoiōn). Government maintains order by punishing criminals and commending virtue. This demonstrates God's common grace—using even pagan rulers to restrain evil and promote good. Believers should respect this divine ordering.

Historical Context

Roman government, despite Nero's increasing tyranny, still maintained basic law and order. Paul similarly taught government's divine origin (Romans 13:1-4). Christians weren't anarchists but model citizens, submitting to legitimate authority while refusing to compromise faith (Acts 5:29). Early church distinguished between lawful submission and unlawful worship of emperor as deity.
