

1 Samuel 10:27

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

But the children of Belial said, How shall this man save us? And they despised him, and brought him no presents. But he held his peace.

Analysis

But the children of Belial said, How shall this man save us? And they despised him, and brought him no presents. But he held his peace.

The chapter concludes with immediate opposition from 'children of Belial' (benei beliya'al) - literally 'sons of worthlessness,' a Hebrew idiom for thoroughly wicked individuals. Their contemptuous question 'How shall this man save us?' (mah-yoshienu zeh) challenges both Saul's capacity and God's selection. Withholding customary gifts (minchah, tribute or present) constituted political rejection of his authority. Yet Saul's response - 'he held his peace' (vayehi kemaacharish, literally 'he was as one being silent') - demonstrates remarkable restraint. This self-control contrasts sharply with his later violent reactions to perceived slights. Early Saul could absorb insult without retaliation; later Saul would slaughter an entire priestly city for suspected disloyalty. The presence of opposition from day one shows that even God-chosen leaders face rejection; success depends not on universal approval but on faithful obedience to divine calling.

Historical Context

The term 'Belial' appears throughout the Old Testament for worthless or wicked persons. Its etymology is debated (perhaps 'without profit' or 'without yoke/restraint'). These opponents may have had tribal jealousies (non-Benjamites resenting Benjamin's elevation) or doubts about Saul's military credentials.
