

1 Samuel 12:16

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Now therefore stand and see this great thing, which the LORD will do before your eyes.

Analysis

Now therefore stand and see this great thing, which the LORD will do before your eyes.

Samuel summons Israel to witness a 'great thing' (gadol) that will authenticate his prophetic authority and confirm the seriousness of his warning. The call to 'stand and see' echoes Moses at the Red Sea (Exodus 14:13), connecting this moment to Israel's foundational deliverance. By announcing in advance what God will do, Samuel demonstrates prophetic foreknowledge that validates everything he has spoken. The coming sign will be undeniably supernatural.

Historical Context

Prophetic signs authenticated divine messengers and their messages. The connection between prophet's word and subsequent fulfillment established credibility (Deuteronomy 18:21-22). Samuel's sign would be particularly dramatic because it violated normal seasonal patterns.
