

1 Samuel 14:31

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And they smote the Philistines that day from Michmash to Aijalon: and the people were very faint.

Analysis

And they smote the Philistines that day from Michmash to Aijalon: and the people were very faint.

Despite their faint condition, the Israelites 'smote the Philistines that day from Michmash to Aijalon.' The distance - approximately 15 miles of difficult terrain - demonstrates significant victory despite Saul's interference. However, at the end 'the people were very faint,' emphasizing again the cost of the oath. God grants victory despite poor leadership, but leadership failure exacts a price even in triumph. The troops are exhausted beyond normal battle fatigue.

Historical Context

Aijalon was in the Shephelah, the foothills leading to the coastal plain. This pursuit path took the Israelites from the central highlands down toward Philistine home territory. The distance indicates a major defeat, though not complete destruction of Philistine power.
