

1 Samuel 14:36

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And Saul said, Let us go down after the Philistines by night, and spoil them until the morning light, and let us not leave a man of them. And they said, Do whatsoever seemeth good unto thee. Then said the priest, Let us draw near hither unto God.

Analysis

And Saul said, Let us go down after the Philistines by night, and spoil them until the morning light, and let us not leave a man of them. And they said, Do whatsoever seemeth good unto thee. Then said the priest, Let us draw near hither unto God.

Saul proposes night attack: 'Let us go down after the Philistines by night, and spoil them until the morning light.' The military aggressiveness contrasts with his earlier passivity (verse 2). The priest's counsel to 'draw near hither unto God' suggests need for divine guidance before such action. Saul's willingness to consult God - 'Do whatsoever seemeth good unto thee' - appears appropriately submissive. The pattern of seeking God after decision, rather than before, continues.

Historical Context

Night attacks were risky in ancient warfare due to coordination difficulties, but could achieve surprise. The priest's intervention slowed Saul's impulsive military plan, introducing the possibility of divine guidance into human strategy.
