

1 Samuel 15:19

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Wherefore then didst thou not obey the voice of the LORD, but didst fly upon the spoil, and didst evil in the sight of the LORD?

Analysis

Wherefore then didst thou not obey the voice of the LORD, but didst fly upon the spoil, and didst evil in the sight of the LORD?

Samuel's accusation intensifies: 'Wherefore then didst thou not obey the voice of the LORD, but didst fly upon the spoil?' The verb 'fly' (ya'at) pictures ravenous greed - the same word used for the people's desperate eating in 14:32. Samuel characterizes Saul's keeping of livestock as greedy seizure, not pious intention. The concluding verdict - 'and didst evil in the sight of the LORD' - is comprehensive judgment. What Saul spiritualized as sacrifice, God sees as evil. Intent does not sanctify disobedient action.

Historical Context

The phrase 'evil in the sight of the LORD' is a recurring formula for covenant violation (Judges 2:11; 3:7, 12; etc.). Samuel applies to Saul the same language used for Israel's repeated apostasy during the judges period. The king has become like his disobedient people.
