

1 Samuel 15:26

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And Samuel said unto Saul, I will not return with thee: for thou hast rejected the word of the LORD, and the LORD hath rejected thee from being king over Israel.

Analysis

And Samuel said unto Saul, I will not return with thee: for thou hast rejected the word of the LORD, and the LORD hath rejected thee from being king over Israel.

Samuel's refusal - 'I will not return with thee' - withdraws prophetic support from Saul's reign. The prophet restates the verdict: 'thou hast rejected the word of the LORD, and the LORD hath rejected thee from being king over Israel.' The repetition emphasizes finality. Samuel's withdrawal is not personal rejection but prophetic witness to divine verdict. By refusing to accompany Saul to worship, Samuel demonstrates that religious ritual cannot proceed as if nothing has changed when fundamental covenant violation has occurred.

Historical Context

Prophetic withdrawal from kings marked divine judgment throughout Israel's history. Elijah's flight from Ahab and prophetic opposition to various kings followed this pattern. Samuel's refusal established the precedent.
