

1 Samuel 18:1

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And it came to pass, when he had made an end of speaking unto Saul, that the soul of Jonathan was knit with the soul of David, and Jonathan loved him as his own soul.

Analysis

And it came to pass, when he had made an end of speaking unto Saul, that the soul of Jonathan was knit with the soul of David, and Jonathan loved him as his own soul.

The phrase 'the soul of Jonathan was knit with the soul of David' (niqsherah benepesh) describes the deepest possible human bonding. This instant, profound connection arose from witnessing David's faith rather than natural attraction or self-interest. Jonathan, Saul's heir, recognized in David something he loved 'as his own soul' (nepesh) - a love transcending self-interest that would later cost him his throne. Such covenant friendship reflects God's design for human community.

Historical Context

Jonathan had demonstrated similar faith-based courage at Michmash (1 Samuel 14), likely recognizing a kindred spirit in David. Royal heirs typically viewed potential rivals with suspicion; Jonathan's immediate love stands as exceptional. The 'knitting' metaphor suggests souls woven together like fabric.
