

1 Samuel 18:20

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And Michal Saul's daughter loved David: and they told Saul, and the thing pleased him.

Analysis

And Michal Saul's daughter loved David: and they told Saul, and the thing pleased him.

Michal's love for David created another opportunity for Saul's scheming: 'she may be a snare to him' (v.21). The Hebrew moqesh (snare/trap) reveals Saul's intent to use his daughter as bait. The irony deepens: both royal children loved David, and Saul would use both their affections for murderous purposes. Yet God would use Michal to save David's life (19:11-17), turning Saul's snare into escape route.

Historical Context

Royal daughters were typically married for political advantage. Michal's genuine love for David was unusual in such arrangements. Her status as Saul's daughter would later complicate her relationship with David as political tensions increased.
