

1 Samuel 20:37

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And when the lad was come to the place of the arrow which Jonathan had shot, Jonathan cried after the lad, and said, Is not the arrow beyond thee?

Analysis

And when the lad was come to the place of the arrow which Jonathan had shot, Jonathan cried after the lad, and said, Is not the arrow beyond thee?

Jonathan's cry - 'Is not the arrow beyond thee?' - ostensibly addressed the servant but spoke to David hiding nearby. The question format emphasized the signal: beyond means danger, beyond means flee. David heard his friend's voice delivering news that would separate them for years. The rhetorical question demanded an answer the boy did not understand but David comprehended completely. Sometimes we must hear life-changing news in coded form, receiving destiny through indirect speech.

Historical Context

Shouted instructions during archery practice were completely normal. The distance between shooter and retriever required loud voice. Jonathan's question form ensured David could not miss the signal's meaning.
