

1 Samuel 22:15

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Did I then begin to enquire of God for him? be it far from me: let not the king impute any thing unto his servant, nor to all the house of my father: for thy servant knew nothing of all this, less or more.

Analysis

Did I then begin to enquire of God for him? be it far from me: let not the king impute any thing unto his servant, nor to all the house of my father: for thy servant knew nothing of all this, less or more.

Ahimelech's final plea asserts complete ignorance. The Hebrew 'chalilah li' (far be it from me) expresses horror at the accusation. His denial that this was the first inquiry ('did I then begin') suggests regular priestly service to David as a royal official. The phrase 'nothing of all this, less or more' (Hebrew 'lo yada...katan vegadol') is a merism meaning absolutely nothing. He extends his plea to 'all the house of my father,' trying to shield his fellow priests. This desperate defense of collective innocence would prove futile. Ahimelech stands as a type of Christ—innocent, making intercession for others, condemned by corrupt authority, and killed despite blamelessness.

Historical Context

Priestly inquiry for royal officials was normal practice. Ahimelech's claim that he 'knew nothing' of any conflict between David and Saul is entirely plausible, as David had deceived him about his mission. The defense pleads both innocence and ignorance.

Study Questions

1. How did Ahimelech's intercession for his fellow priests reflect pastoral responsibility?
2. What does the failure of an innocent defense before corrupt power teach about trusting in God's ultimate justice?
