

1 Samuel 23:14

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And David abode in the wilderness in strong holds, and remained in a mountain in the wilderness of Ziph. And Saul sought him every day, but God delivered him not into his hand.

Analysis

And David abode in the wilderness in strong holds, and remained in a mountain in the wilderness of Ziph. And Saul sought him every day, but God delivered him not into his hand.

The contrast between Saul's constant pursuit and God's constant protection frames David's wilderness years. The Hebrew 'metsadot' (strongholds) describes natural fortifications—caves and rocky positions offering defensive advantage. The wilderness of Ziph, southeast of Hebron, provided rugged terrain favoring evasion over pursuit. The phrase 'Saul sought him every day' (kol-hayamim) emphasizes the relentless hunt. Yet the theological summary—'God delivered him not into his hand'—attributes David's survival to divine protection rather than human skill. God's sovereignty overshadowed both Saul's determination and David's tactics.

Historical Context

The wilderness of Ziph contained numerous caves and rocky outcrops ideal for hiding. The Judean wilderness, with its deep wadis and barren hills, allowed small bands to survive through mobility and local knowledge. Saul's larger forces were disadvantaged in this terrain.
