

1 Samuel 25:15

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

But the men were very good unto us, and we were not hurt, neither missed we any thing, as long as we were conversant with them, when we were in the fields:

Analysis

But the men were very good unto us, and we were not hurt, neither missed we any thing, as long as we were conversant with them, when we were in the fields:

The servant confirms David's claims independently. The Hebrew 'tovim...me'od' (very good) describes David's men's conduct. The parallel to David's message—'we were not hurt, neither missed we any thing'—verifies the protection provided. 'As long as we were conversant with them' (Hebrew 'kol yemei hithallakenu ittam') describes extended daily interaction in the fields. This firsthand testimony from Nabal's own employee establishes David's truthfulness and Nabal's ingratitude. The servant's report to Abigail provides her information needed for wise response. Unlike Nabal's contemptuous dismissal, his servants recognized and appreciated David's protection.

Historical Context

Shepherds in wilderness regions faced genuine dangers from bandits and wild animals. David's band providing protection rather than exploitation was noteworthy. The servant's detailed confirmation suggests the protection was extensive and appreciated by those who experienced it.
