

1 Samuel 25:30

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And it shall come to pass, when the LORD shall have done to my lord according to all the good that he hath spoken concerning thee, and shall have appointed thee ruler over Israel;

Analysis

And it shall come to pass, when the LORD shall have done to my lord according to all the good that he hath spoken concerning thee, and shall have appointed thee ruler over Israel;

Abigail explicitly anticipates David's kingship. The Hebrew 'nagid' (ruler/prince) was the term Samuel used when anointing both Saul (9:16) and David (2 Samuel 5:2). Her confidence that 'the LORD shall have done' (using perfect tense prophetically) treats David's reign as certain. The phrase 'all the good that he hath spoken concerning thee' references divine promises Abigail somehow knew about. Her statement 'appointed thee ruler over Israel' acknowledges David's divine election publicly—bold declaration from a stranger. This woman recognized what Saul denied and what David's wilderness experience might have caused him to doubt.

Historical Context

Abigail's knowledge of divine promises to David could have come through various channels—David's fame, prophetic revelation, or widespread awareness of Samuel's anointing. Her use of 'nagid' employed precise theological vocabulary for Israel's appointed leader.

Study Questions

1. How did Abigail demonstrate faith in God's promises to David when circumstances contradicted them?
2. What encouragement might her confident prediction have provided to the fugitive David?
