

1 Samuel 3:18

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And Samuel told him every whit, and hid nothing from him. And he said, It is the LORD: let him do what seemeth him good.

Analysis

Samuel tells 'every whit' (literally 'every word'), hiding nothing. Complete disclosure fulfills prophetic responsibility and responds to Eli's demand. Eli's response is remarkable: 'It is the LORD: let him do what seemeth him good.' No protest, no pleading, no excuse - only acceptance of divine sovereignty. This submission to judgment demonstrates a kind of faith despite failure. Eli recognizes God's right to judge and accepts the verdict. His response does not reverse the judgment but reveals a heart that ultimately acknowledges divine authority.

Historical Context

Eli's response echoes Job's acceptance of divine sovereignty (Job 1:21). Such submission to God's will, even in judgment, characterizes biblical piety at its best. Eli's earlier failures make this acceptance all the more striking.

Study Questions

---

1. How can someone simultaneously be under judgment and submit faithfully to God's sovereignty?
2. What does Eli's response teach about accepting the consequences of past failures?
