

1 Samuel 4:11

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And the ark of God was taken; and the two sons of Eli, Hophni and Phinehas, were slain.

Analysis

The prophecy's sign finds fulfillment: Hophni and Phinehas die together on the same day (2:34). Their deaths validate the entire prophetic oracle and seal judgment on Eli's house. The Ark's capture completes the disaster - symbol of God's presence carried away by pagans. Yet even in this catastrophe, God remains sovereign. The Ark's captivity will become the occasion for demonstrating His power over Dagon. What looks like Yahweh's defeat becomes Yahweh's victory in foreign territory.

Historical Context

The deaths of both sons on one day fulfilled precisely what the man of God had prophesied (2:34). This exact fulfillment authenticated the broader prophecy against Eli's house that would continue unfolding through subsequent generations.
