

1 Samuel 7:13

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

So the Philistines were subdued, and they came no more into the coast of Israel: and the hand of the LORD was against the Philistines all the days of Samuel.

Analysis

So the Philistines were subdued, and they came no more into the coast of Israel: and the hand of the LORD was against the Philistines all the days of Samuel.

The verse summarizes lasting effects of Mizpah's victory. 'Subdued' ('kana') indicates humiliation and forced submission - the dominant Philistines now acknowledged Israelite resurgence. The phrase 'came no more into the coast of Israel' describes cessation of territorial aggression during Samuel's leadership. Most significantly, 'the hand of the LORD was against the Philistines' reverses the earlier narrative where God's hand struck Israel (1 Samuel 5:6, 9). The divine hand that plagued Philistia for taking the Ark now actively opposed their military ambitions. The qualifier 'all the days of Samuel' indicates this peace lasted only during prophetic leadership - subsequent events under Saul would see Philistine resurgence. Human faithfulness and divine protection form interconnected realities; when Israel later rejected Samuel's leadership pattern, protection diminished.

Historical Context

The Philistine threat would resurface powerfully under Saul's reign, suggesting this verse describes relative peace rather than permanent elimination. Archaeological evidence confirms continued Philistine presence in their traditional territory. Samuel's authority apparently maintained a buffer protecting Israelite settlements.

Study Questions

1. What does the connection between Samuel's leadership and Philistine restraint teach about faithful leadership's protective role?
2. How does God's 'hand' both protect His people and oppose their enemies?
