

1 Samuel 9:17

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And when Samuel saw Saul, the LORD said unto him, Behold the man whom I spake to thee of! this same shall reign over my people.

Analysis

And when Samuel saw Saul, the LORD said unto him, Behold the man whom I spake to thee of! this same shall reign over my people.

The divine voice interrupts the visual moment, confirming Saul's identity to Samuel with emphatic certainty: 'Behold the man!' (hinneh ha'ish). This direct divine communication while Samuel looked upon Saul demonstrates the prophetic gift in action: seeing with physical eyes while receiving spiritual revelation. The verb 'reign' (atsar) literally means 'to restrain' or 'to rule,' suggesting that the king's function was to bring order and restraint to Israel's chaotic situation. Notably, God still calls Israel 'my people,' refusing to abandon them despite their rejection. The moment is charged with both promise and foreboding: Saul is God's chosen instrument, yet earlier chapters have established the problematic nature of Israel's request. Samuel receives clear divine confirmation, removing any doubt about Saul's identity while leaving future questions of Saul's character to unfold.

Historical Context

The divine voice speaking directly to prophets (rather than through dreams or visions alone) characterized Samuel's prophetic ministry. This immediacy of revelation distinguished Israel's prophetic tradition from divination practices in surrounding cultures. The moment parallels other divine identifications of chosen leaders (Moses, Gideon, David).
