

1 Timothy 1:10

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

For whoremongers, for them that defile themselves with mankind, for menstealers, for liars, for perjured persons, and if there be any other thing that is contrary to sound doctrine;

Analysis

For whoremongers, for them that defile themselves with mankind, for menstealers, for liars, for perjured persons, and if there be any other thing that is contrary to sound doctrine; Paul continues his catalog of sins for which law exists. "Whoremongers" (pornois, πόρνοις) refers to those engaged in sexual immorality generally, including fornication and adultery. "Them that defile themselves with mankind" (arsenokoitais, ἀρσενοκοίταις) specifically describes homosexual practice—a compound word Paul likely coined from the Greek Septuagint's translation of Leviticus 18:22 and 20:13, combining arsēn (male) and koitē (bed, sexual intercourse).

"Menstealers" (andrapodistais, ἀνδραποδισταῖς) are those who kidnap or traffic in human beings—slave traders. This condemns not merely the abuse of slaves but the entire slave trade based on kidnapping and forcibly enslaving free people. "Liars" (pseustais, ψεύσταις) are habitual deceivers who make falsehood their practice. "Perjured persons" (epiorkois, ἐπιόρκοις) are those who swear falsely, particularly in legal contexts, violating the ninth commandment.

Paul concludes with a comprehensive phrase: "if there be any other thing that is contrary to sound doctrine" (ei ti heteron tē hygiainousē didaskalia antikeitai, εἴ τι ἕτερον τῇ ὑγιαίνουσῃ διδασκαλίᾳ ἀντίκειται). The phrase "sound doctrine" (hygiainousē didaskalia, ὑγιαίνουσῃ διδασκαλίᾳ) literally means "healthy teaching"—doctrine that promotes spiritual health rather than disease. This connects moral behavior with theological truth: ethics flow from doctrine.

Historical Context

Sexual immorality pervaded Greco-Roman culture. Temple prostitution was practiced in many pagan religions, including the cult of Artemis at Ephesus. Homosexual practice, particularly pederasty (relationships between adult men and adolescent boys), was accepted and even celebrated in Greek culture. Paul's clear condemnation of such practices stood in stark opposition to surrounding cultural norms.

The slave trade was a massive economic enterprise in the Roman Empire. While the New Testament doesn't directly call for abolition of slavery as an institution (which would have been politically impossible and socially revolutionary), it does condemn the kidnapping and selling of human beings. Early Christian teaching on human dignity (all made in God's image) and brotherly love ultimately undermined slavery's moral foundation.

Lying and false testimony were common in legal proceedings where witnesses could be bribed or intimidated. Business dealings often involved deception. Against this background, biblical standards of truth-telling and covenant faithfulness represented a radically different approach to human relationships. Christians were to be known for truthfulness and integrity.
