

1 Timothy 3:5

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

(For if a man know not how to rule his own house, how shall he take care of the church of God?)

Analysis

For if a man know not how to rule his own house, how shall he take care of the church of God? (εἰ δέ τις τοῦ ἰδίου οἴκου προστῆναι οὐκ οἶδεν, πῶς ἐκκλησίας θεοῦ ἐπιμελήσεται; ei de tis tou idiou oikou prostēnai ouk oiden, pōs ekklēσίας theou epimelēsetai?)—'if someone does not know how to manage his own household, how will he care for God's church?' Proistēmi means to lead, manage, care for. Epimeleō means to take care of, care for—the same word used of the Good Samaritan caring for the wounded man (Luke 10:34-35).

Paul's logic is clear and compelling: household management tests and prepares for church leadership. The skills required are similar—wise leadership, patient teaching, conflict resolution, resource stewardship, long-term vision. If a man fails at home with a few people he loves deeply, how can he succeed in shepherding God's larger family?

This isn't arbitrary requirement but wisdom. Family relationships reveal character under stress—how a man treats wife and children when no one's watching shows his true heart. Public ministry can be performed with skillful hypocrisy, but home life exposes reality. The church needs leaders whose character has been tested and proven in the laboratory of family life.

Historical Context

The household was the basic unit of ancient society and the early church—congregations met in homes, and household conversions were common (Acts 16:15, 31-34). A man's household management was visible evidence of his leadership ability. If he couldn't lead his small domestic 'church,' he wasn't ready for larger responsibility. The parallel between household and church wasn't metaphorical but literal—both are God's family.
