

1 Timothy 3:7

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Moreover he must have a good report of them which are without; lest he fall into reproach and the snare of the devil.

Analysis

Moreover he must have a good report of them which are without (δεῖ δὲ καὶ μαρτυρίαν καλὴν ἔχειν ἀπὸ τῶν ἔξωθεν, dei de kai martyrian kalēn echein apo tōn exōthen)—the elder must have 'good testimony from outsiders.' Greek exōthen refers to non-Christians, those outside the church community.

Lest he fall into reproach and the snare of the devil—oneidismon (reproach, disgrace) and pagida (trap, snare). The elder's reputation affects both his ministry effectiveness and his spiritual safety. Satan exploits moral inconsistency to discredit the gospel message. When leaders are hypocrites, the enemy has ammunition to attack both the man and the church.

This remarkable requirement shows Christianity is not a private religion—the watching world's perception matters. Not because we seek human approval, but because our witness to Christ's transforming power requires visible integrity. The elder's life commends or contradicts his message.

Historical Context

Ephesus was a cosmopolitan port city where Christians lived in close proximity to pagan neighbors. Business dealings, civic responsibilities, and daily interactions meant believers were constantly observed. If church leaders were known for dishonesty, immorality, or financial impropriety, the gospel would be dismissed as powerless. Paul insists elders must demonstrate Christlike character before both church and world.
