

2 Chronicles 36:15

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And the LORD God of their fathers sent to them by his messengers, rising up betimes, and sending; because he had compassion on his people, and on his dwelling place:

Analysis

The Chronicler's summary of Israel's rebellion and God's patience: 'And the LORD God of their fathers sent to them by his messengers, rising up betimes, and sending; because he had compassion on his people, and on his dwelling place.' The phrase 'rising up betimes' (hashkem v'shaloch - rising early and sending) anthropomorphically depicts God's eager, persistent compassion. Despite constant prophetic warnings through multiple messengers, the people mocked and despised God's Word (36:16). This demonstrates that even abundant grace and patience can be spurned, leading ultimately to just judgment. Yet the motivation - compassion for people and His dwelling place - reveals God's heart even when exercising discipline.

Historical Context

This summarizes the prophetic ministry from the divided kingdom through Josiah (c. 930-609 BCE). Prophets like Isaiah, Jeremiah, Micah, Zephaniah, and others continually called for repentance, yet leadership and people persisted in idolatry, bringing inevitable exile.
