

2 Corinthians 5:2

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

For in this we groan, earnestly desiring to be clothed upon with our house which is from heaven:

Analysis

For in this we groan—The verb stenazō (στενάζω) expresses the deep inward groaning of creation under sin's curse (Romans 8:22-23). Paul describes the universal Christian experience of longing for redemption's completion. Earnestly desiring to be clothed upon with our house which is from heaven uses epipothountes (ἐπιποθοῦντες, "earnestly longing"), the same intense desire expressed in 1:8 and Philippians 1:23.

The clothing metaphor (ependysasthai, ἐπενδύσασθαι, "to put on over") suggests not naked disembodiment but transformation—the resurrection body clothing over mortality. This counters Greek dualism that viewed death as escape from the body. Paul longs not for death itself but for resurrection glory. The phrase "from heaven" (ex ouranou, ἐξ οὐρανοῦ) emphasizes divine origin—this is God's gift, not human achievement.

Historical Context

Greek philosophy (particularly Platonism) viewed the body as a prison from which the soul sought escape. Paul's Jewish-Christian theology affirms embodiment while longing for its glorification. The "groaning" motif connects to Jewish apocalyptic expectations of the age to come when God would redeem all creation.
