

2 Thessalonians 3:4

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And we have confidence in the Lord touching you, that ye both do and will do the things which we command you.

Analysis

And we have confidence in the Lord touching you, that ye both do and will do the things which we command you—we have confidence in the Lord (pepoithamen en Kyriō, πεποίθαμεν ἐν Κυρίῳ)—trust anchored in Christ, not human ability. Touching you (eph' hymas, ἐφ' ὑμᾶς, concerning you): that ye both do and will do (poieite kai poiēsete, ποιεῖτε καὶ ποιήσετε, present and future obedience).

Paul expresses confidence they're currently obeying the things which we command (ha parangellomen, ἃ παραγγέλλομεν, authoritative orders) and will continue. This isn't flattery but faith in God's work in them. The upcoming sharp rebuke (vv. 6-15) about idleness is addressed to a minority; Paul trusts the majority will respond rightly.

Historical Context

Pastoral ministry requires balancing encouragement and correction. Paul affirms the faithful majority before confronting the disobedient minority. This prevents corporate discouragement while addressing specific sin. Modern church discipline should follow this pattern.

Study Questions

1. How does confidence 'in the Lord' regarding others differ from naive optimism about human nature?
2. What commands of Scripture are you currently obeying and committed to continuing?
3. How can you encourage fellow believers' obedience while still addressing sin?
