

Acts 1:6

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

When they therefore were come together, they asked of him, saying, Lord, wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?

Analysis

The disciples' question - 'wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?' - revealed lingering expectations of political restoration. Jesus redirected their focus from timing ('times or seasons') to mission ('ye shall be witnesses'). The Greek apokathistaneis (restore) echoed prophetic promises, showing the disciples still anticipated national restoration.

Historical Context

First-century Jewish messianic expectation emphasized political deliverance from Rome. The disciples, even after resurrection appearances, still anticipated an earthly kingdom. Jesus' response transformed their nationalistic hopes into global mission without denying future fulfillment.

Study Questions

1. How might your expectations of what God should do limit your participation in what He is doing?
2. What does Jesus' response teach about prioritizing mission over speculation about timing?
