

Acts 10:30

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And Cornelius said, Four days ago I was fasting until this hour; and at the ninth hour I prayed in my house, and, behold, a man stood before me in bright clothing,

Analysis

And Cornelius said, Four days ago I was fasting until this hour; and at the ninth hour I prayed in my house, and, behold, a man stood before me in bright clothing, Cornelius's account establishes chronology while emphasizing spiritual disciplines (fasting, prayer) that preceded angelic visitation.

Historical Context

Four days ago traces timeline: Day 1—Cornelius's vision; Day 2—messengers travel to Joppa; Day 3—Peter's vision, departure with messengers; Day 4—arrival in Caesarea. The ninth hour (3 PM) coincided with Jewish afternoon prayer time, showing Cornelius's integration of Jewish spiritual practices. Bright clothing indicated angelic being. This testimony around 40 CE validated divine initiative in bringing gospel to Gentiles.
