

Acts 13:23

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Of this man's seed hath God according to his promise raised unto Israel a Saviour, Jesus:

Analysis

Of this man's seed (ἐκ τοῦ σπέρματος τούτου) directly connects Jesus to David's lineage, fulfilling the Davidic covenant (2 Samuel 7:12-16). Paul's phrase according to his promise (κατ' ἐπαγγελίαν) emphasizes divine faithfulness—God keeps His ancient promises. The verb raised (ῆγειρεν) carries double meaning: God 'raised up' Jesus historically as David's descendant AND raised Him from death, making Him both Messianic heir and risen Savior.

The title Savior (σωτῆρα, sotēra) echoes Old Testament deliverers like Moses and the Judges but transcends them—Jesus saves not from temporal enemies but from sin itself. Unto Israel establishes covenant priority (Romans 1:16, 'to the Jew first') while foreshadowing universal salvation. Paul's sermon traces Israel's history (vv. 17-22) to demonstrate that Jesus is no interruption but the goal toward which all Scripture points.

Historical Context

Preached in Pisidian Antioch's synagogue circa AD 47 during Paul's first missionary journey. Jewish expectations of a Davidic Messiah were intense under Roman occupation, but most anticipated political liberation. Paul redefines messianic salvation as spiritual deliverance through a crucified and risen King—offensive to Jewish nationalism but central to apostolic gospel.

Study Questions

1. How does Jesus' Davidic ancestry strengthen your confidence in God's faithfulness to His promises?
2. In what ways do you need Jesus as 'Savior' beyond just forgiveness—as deliverer from sin's power and consequences?
