

Acts 14:15

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And saying, Sirs, why do ye these things? We also are men of like passions with you, and preach unto you that ye should turn from these vanities unto the living God, which made heaven, and earth, and the sea, and all things that are therein:

Analysis

Paul's emphatic rejection of worship ('We also are men of like passions with you') establishes the unbridgeable distinction between human servants and divine Lord. The call to 'turn from these vanities unto the living God' presents the gospel as radical monotheism. The creational theology ('which made heaven, and earth, and the sea') provides natural revelation foundation for evangelism.

Historical Context

At Lystra (AD 49), locals identified Paul and Barnabas as Zeus and Hermes after healing the lame man. The missionaries' torn clothes and urgent protest prevented idolatrous sacrifice, though barely (Acts 14:18). This incident highlights the challenge of contextualizing the gospel in pagan polytheistic cultures.
