

Acts 16:30

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And brought them out, and said, Sirs, what must I do to be saved?

Analysis

And brought them out, and said, Sirs, what must I do to be saved?—The Philippian jailer's question follows an earthquake that freed prisoners but didn't prompt escape, convincing him of divine intervention. His address 'Sirs' (κύριοι) shows respect; his question 'what must I do' (τί με δεῖ ποιεῖν) assumes salvation requires action. The Greek 'sōthō' (be saved) likely meant initially 'saved from consequences of prisoner escape' but Paul redirects to eternal salvation. This is Scripture's clearest statement of the seeker's question, receiving the clearest gospel answer (v.31).

Historical Context

Paul and Silas, imprisoned after exorcising a fortune-telling spirit (vv.16-24), sang hymns at midnight when an earthquake opened prison doors (vv.25-26). The jailer, about to commit suicide assuming prisoners escaped (v.27), was stopped by Paul's assurance that none had fled. This demonstration of Christian integrity and supernatural power prompted his inquiry. He and his household were immediately baptized (v.33).
