

Acts 19:20

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

So mightily grew the word of God and prevailed.

Analysis

Luke's summary—"So mightily grew the word of God and prevailed"—personifies the word, giving it dynamic, powerful agency. The word (logos) isn't mere human speech but God's effective power (Isaiah 55:11, Hebrews 4:12). 'Mightily grew' (kata kratos ēuxanen) describes supernatural expansion. 'Prevailed' (ischyen) means overcame opposition, proving irresistible despite magic practices (19:19), riots (19:23-41), and persecution. This demonstrates the word's self-authenticating power—God causes growth (1 Corinthians 3:6-7), ministers merely plant and water. The context (burning expensive magic books worth 50,000 silver pieces, 19:19) shows the gospel's transforming power, demolishing deeply entrenched occultism. Where God's word goes forth, it accomplishes His purpose.

Historical Context

Ephesus, Asia's capital and Diana's temple location, was a center of magic and occultism. The burning of magic books represented massive financial loss but demonstrated converts' genuine repentance—they didn't sell books to profit but destroyed them completely. First-century 'curious arts' (periergōn, 19:19) included spells, incantations, and magical formulas. Ephesian letters (Ephesia grammata) were famous magical texts. Paul's three-year ministry there (20:31) established a church that influenced all Asia (19:10). His Ephesian letter later addressed spiritual warfare (Ephesians 6:10-18), fitting a context formerly dominated by occult powers. The gospel's triumph in such hostile territory demonstrates its divine origin and power.
