

Acts 21:11

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And when he was come unto us, he took Paul's girdle, and bound his own hands and feet, and said, Thus saith the Holy Ghost, So shall the Jews at Jerusalem bind the man that owneth this girdle, and shall deliver him into the hands of the Gentiles.

Analysis

Agabus's prophetic sign-act, binding his own hands and feet with Paul's belt, echoed Old Testament prophetic symbolism (compare Jeremiah 13:1-11, Ezekiel 4). The detailed prophecy - 'the Jews at Jerusalem shall bind the man' - proved remarkably accurate, though the Romans actually performed the arrest. This demonstrates how prophetic revelation conveys essential truth while details may unfold differently than expected.

Historical Context

Symbolic prophetic acts were common in Hebrew tradition. The reference to 'the Gentiles' accurately predicted Paul's Roman custody, fulfilling Jesus's prophecy that Paul would testify before Gentiles and kings (Acts 9:15).
