

Acts 21:36

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

For the multitude of the people followed after, crying, Away with him.

Analysis

The cry 'Away with him' (Greek 'Aire auton') echoed the mob's demand for Jesus's crucifixion (Luke 23:18, John 19:15), showing Paul's identification with his Savior's sufferings. The violent mob mentality that condemned the sinless Son of God now sought the life of His faithful apostle, demonstrating the continuity of opposition to God's truth across generations.

Historical Context

This cry represented the formal demand for execution in Roman judicial proceedings. The crowd's use of this specific phrase reveals their intent wasn't merely to punish but to kill Paul.
