

Acts 23:27

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

This man was taken of the Jews, and should have been killed of them: then came I with an army, and rescued him, having understood that he was a Roman.

Analysis

Lysias's account distorts the sequence - he didn't rescue Paul knowing he was Roman but discovered his citizenship after the arrest (Acts 22:25-29). This face-saving revision shows how even God's instruments have mixed motives. Yet divine providence used Lysias's self-interested report to advance Paul's case, demonstrating how God accomplishes His purposes through flawed human actions.

Historical Context

Roman military officers faced severe penalties for mistreating citizens. Lysias's revision protected his career while accurately reporting the essential facts of Jewish plots and Paul's innocence of Roman crimes.
