

Acts 24:17

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Now after many years I came to bring alms to my nation, and offerings.

Analysis

---

Paul's statement about bringing 'alms to my nation' referred to the collection from Gentile churches for Jerusalem's poor (Romans 15:25-27). This humanitarian mission directly refuted charges of sedition or anti-Jewish sentiment. The mention of 'offerings' indicates his participation in temple ceremonies, further demonstrating devotion to Jewish practice.

Historical Context

This collection represented Paul's major project during his third missionary journey, demonstrating Gentile-Jewish unity in Christ. The substantial gift from predominantly Gentile churches to Jewish believers showed the gospel's reconciling power.

Study Questions

1. How does practical generosity across cultural boundaries demonstrate the gospel's transforming power?

2. What does Paul's reference to this gift teach about letting good works speak as defense against accusations?
