

Acts 24:2

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And when he was called forth, Tertullus began to accuse him, saying, Seeing that by thee we enjoy great quietness, and that very worthy deeds are done unto this nation by thy providence,

Analysis

---

Tertullus began with flattery: 'we enjoy great quietness, and very worthy deeds are done unto this nation by thy providence.' This rhetorical strategy sought to predispose Felix favorably. 'Providence' (pronoias) attributed divine-like care to a corrupt governor.

Historical Context

Tertullus, a hired Roman orator, followed standard rhetorical conventions. Felix's actual rule was marked by brutality and corruption, making this flattery particularly ironic.
