

Acts 25:14

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And when they had been there many days, Festus declared Paul's cause unto the king, saying, There is a certain man left in bonds by Felix:

Analysis

When they had been there many days, Festus declared Paul's cause unto the king—Festus waited for proper timing to discuss his administrative dilemma. The verb 'anetheto' (declared, set forth) suggests formal presentation of a legal case. He introduces Paul as a certain man left in bonds by Felix, distancing himself from his predecessor's political cowardice while acknowledging the case's complicated history.

The phrase 'in bonds' (δέσμιος, desmios) emphasizes Paul's ongoing imprisonment without conviction. For two years under Felix, now continuing under Festus, Paul remained bound despite no proven charges. This prolonged injustice—protective custody becoming indefinite imprisonment—illustrates the corruption of even the 'superior' Roman legal system when political expediency trumps justice.

Historical Context

Paul had been imprisoned since AD 57, spending two years under Felix (Acts 24:27) before Festus arrived. His continued imprisonment without trial violated Roman legal principles, but political pressure from the Sanhedrin made releasing him politically dangerous. Festus's consultation with Agrippa sought both legal advice and political cover.
