

Acts 27:24

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Saying, Fear not, Paul; thou must be brought before Caesar: and, lo, God hath given thee all them that sail with thee.

Analysis

Fear not, Paul; thou must be brought before Caesar—The divine 'must' (δεῖ, it is necessary) signals prophetic inevitability, echoing Jesus' passion predictions. Paul's Roman trial serves God's purposes for gospel advance, not merely political events. The stunning addition: God hath given thee all them that sail with thee (κεχάρισται, has graciously granted)—276 lives spared for one apostle's sake demonstrates intercession's power. This echoes Abraham's intercession for Sodom (Genesis 18) and Joseph preserving Egypt (Genesis 45:7). Believers become conduits of God's blessing to unbelievers.

Historical Context

Paul had earlier been promised he would testify in Rome (Acts 23:11). This reaffirmation came when circumstances seemed to contradict that promise. The Roman centurion Julius and 275 others were saved because of God's purpose for Paul—a remarkable testimony to providence overruling disaster.
