

Acts 27:35

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And when he had thus spoken, he took bread, and gave thanks to God in presence of them all: and when he had broken it, he began to eat.

Analysis

---

He took bread, and gave thanks to God in presence of them all—Paul's public thanksgiving transformed a meal into witness. The Greek eucharistēsas (gave thanks) recalls Jesus' Last Supper actions and feeding miracles. Though not a communion service, Paul's blessing demonstrated that in presence of them all—pagans included—God deserved gratitude.

When he had broken it, he began to eat—Simple actions spoke volumes. The prisoner's calm confidence and public prayer to the true God shamed the sailors' panic and the soldiers' uncertainty. His eating first modeled the faith he preached. This scene previews Paul's later Roman imprisonment ministry where his chains advanced the gospel (Philippians 1:12-14).

Historical Context

Public prayer to foreign gods was common in polytheistic Rome, but exclusive devotion to Israel's God was distinctive. Paul's thanksgiving publicly identified the source of promised deliverance. The breaking of bread (artos, ordinary bread, not sacramental) was standard Jewish practice before meals, acknowledging God as provider. For 276 terrified people, Paul's composed blessing was powerful testimony.

Study Questions

1. How does public thanksgiving for God's provision witness to His reality and care?
2. What does Paul's example teach about practicing faith visibly during corporate crisis?
