

Acts 28:22

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

But we desire to hear of thee what thou thinkest: for as concerning this sect, we know that every where it is spoken against.

Analysis

We desire to hear of thee what thou thinkest shows genuine curiosity despite awareness of Christianity's controversial status. Their acknowledgment—concerning this sect, we know that every where it is spoken against (πανταχοῦ ἀντιλέγεται)—recognized Christianity's universal opposition. The Greek 'hairesis' (sect) wasn't necessarily pejorative but distinguished Christianity from mainstream Judaism. Universal opposition ('everywhere') fulfilled Christ's warning that His followers would be hated (Matthew 10:22). Yet this very opposition created curiosity—people wanted to understand what provoked such hostility.

Historical Context

By AD 60-61, Christianity had spread throughout the Roman Empire, generating controversy in every region. Roman Jews, expelled previously under Claudius (possibly due to Christian-Jewish conflicts), were wary but curious about this movement.

Study Questions

1. How should the gospel's controversial nature encourage rather than discourage your witness?
2. What does widespread opposition to Christianity reveal about the message's supernatural origin and power?
