

Acts 3:15

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And killed the Prince of life, whom God hath raised from the dead; whereof we are witnesses.

Analysis

The supreme irony: 'killed the Prince of life' - they murdered the source of all life. Yet 'God raised him from the dead' vindicated Jesus and provided the very life they tried to extinguish. Peter and John stand as resurrection witnesses, their testimony authenticated by the healing just performed.

Historical Context

The title 'Prince of life' (Greek archehos) means originator, pioneer, or founder. Killing life's author was the ultimate futility - death couldn't hold Him.
