

Acts 4:11

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

This is the stone which was set at nought of you builders, which is become the head of the corner.

Analysis

Peter quotes Psalm 118:22 - 'the stone which was set at nought of you builders, which is become the head of the corner' - applying Israel's rejected-then-exalted stone to Christ. The Greek 'exouthenetis' (set at nought) means 'counted as nothing,' revealing the depth of religious leaders' contempt. Yet God made this rejected stone the 'head of the corner' (Greek 'kephalēn gōnias,' cornerstone) - the critical stone uniting two walls, bearing the building's weight. The builders' rejection doesn't nullify God's choice.

Historical Context

Psalm 118, recited during Passover, celebrated God's unexpected deliverance. Jesus quoted this verse predicting His rejection (Matthew 21:42). Peter now fulfills this prophecy, identifying the 'builders' (religious leaders) as Christ's rejectors. Ancient construction required cornerstones to align entire structures - Christ performs this role cosmically.

1. How does human rejection of Christ serve God's purposes in making Him cornerstone?
2. What does it mean that Christ is the 'head of the corner' for the church's unity and stability?
